RULING OF COURT
UPON FOLEY TODAY

Former Judge Advocate of Naval Court Denies Under Oath Charges of
Mrs. Lansdowne.

Washington, November 19.—(AP)—As counsel for Mrs. Margaret Ross Lansdowne, Joseph E. Davies asked Secretary Wilbur, in a letter sent to him last night, to discharge the Shenandoah court of inquiry of further duties, because of the manner in which it conducted the inquiry into the charges brought against its former judge-advocate, Captain Paul Foley, by Mrs. Lansdowne.

Asks For Two Things.

"First, furnish to counsel for Mrs. Lansdowne a stenographic copy of the testimony of all witnesses heard before it on the question of any controversy of fact as between her and Captain Foley.

"Second, reconvene and recall witnesses whose appearance is requested by counsel for Mrs. Lansdowne, and that counsel for Mrs. Lansdowne be permitted to cross-examine such witnesses for the purpose of eliciting all the facts."

"Permit me to say in conclusion," Mr. Davies wrote, "that there are facts which have not been disclosed under oath, which are germane and pertinent on the question of what influence was brought to bear on Mrs. Lansdowne; either not to testify at all, or to modify and change her statement."

Tells of Being Ejected.

In his letter, Mr. Davies recited that when he undertook to appear as counsel for Mrs. Lansdowne before the Shenandoah court, he was ejected forcibly by a marine guard, and asserted that the denial of the right of his client to counsel was a "miscarriage of justice."

That this was so, he said, was evidenced by the large number of "improper questions" which were asked her, and which no court of justice would countenance.

"A hostile judge-advocate was the judge of the propriety of his own questions," Mr. Davies contended, adding that, moreover, Mrs. Lansdowne was "drilled by the right to Captain Foley as a defendant, to have adverse witnesses cross-examined by her attorney."

Mr. Davies also alleged that the court acted beyond its lawful powers in undertaking to investigate the

Famous American Air

Court-Martial.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.
(United News Staff Correspondent.)
Washington, November 19.—Colonel William Mitchell's defense of his charges of maladministration of the air service by the army and navy is about ended.

The court-martial entered its final phase Thursday with the introduction of voluminous documentary evidence. Witnesses for Mitchell have all been heard with the exception of the fiery airman himself. He will take the stand within the next few days.

Present prosecution plans do not call for an extended rebuttal. Witnesses will be called by the army and navy in an effort to break down the harassing criticism they have been subjected to, which observers say has been the most sensational court-martial in the history of the country.

Mitchell's counsel took advantage of the waning days of his fight to prove the airman's charges, to parade before the court an imposing array of American aces, led by the redoubtable "Eddie" Rickenbacker and including Reed M. Chambers and Leigh Wade, famed round-the-world flier.

2 YEARS IN PRISON

Verdict of Involuntary
Manslaughter Returned

Woman—Slew Boarder.

NEW TRIAL APPEAL
HINT OF ATTORNEYS

Conviction of Mrs. Carson Follows Statement
That Brown Was Advancing Upon Her.

Marietta, Ga., November 19.—(Special).—The jury in the case of Mrs. Winnie Lou Carson, on trial in superior court here on a charge of the murder of Thomas Brown, Jr., a boarder at her home, on the morning of October 4, this afternoon returned a verdict of involuntary manslaughter, which automatically carries with it a two-year term in prison.

Attorneys indicated that appeal will be taken.

The case began here Wednesday morning. Mrs. Carson, taking the stand in her own defense, related to the jury that Brown had come into her home in a drunken condition on the Sunday morning as she was preparing breakfast, and threatened her life and as he drew back his arm as if to throw a rock at her she grabbed a pistol and fired one shot at Brown, from which he died almost instantly.

Following Mrs. Carson's statement, both state and defense rested and arguments in the case were concluded Thursday morning.

Introduction of evidence following closely the selection of a jury Wednesday morning, several witnesses being introduced both for the state and the defense. Emmaline Carson, daughter of the defendant, gave practically the same account of the killing as was given by her mother.

It was testified by witnesses that after the lone shot was fired into his body, Brown walked from the kitchen of the Carson home and fell dead in the yard. His father, who lives close by, was notified and he removed the body and had a warrant issued for Mrs. Carson.

Mrs. Carson was indicted by the Cobb county grand jury and ordered held without bond.

Brown, who was an ex-soldier, was employed at a brick plant on the Chattahoochee river, and boarded at the Carson home, because it was close to his work, it was said.

The jury was given the case today at 10:30 o'clock and reached a verdict six hours later.

Solicitor General John S. Wood represented the state and Lindley W. Camp and John Dorsey represented Mrs. Carson.

Jones and Bloodworth To Be Resentenced to Death
On Gallows.

Columbus, Ga., November 19.—(Special).—The remittitur in the case of Willie Jones and Gervis Bloodworth, Taylor county youths, twice tried and convicted without recommendation for the murder of Howard F. Underwood, of Reynolds, December 3, 1923, and who were for the second time denied a new trial by the supreme court Tuesday, will be sent to the clerk of the court here where their last trial was held and they will be resented.

Five times already they have heard dates set for their execution, and apparently, as indicated by statements following yesterday's ruling of the supreme court and previously, they are fully resigned to their fate. The remittitur is expected to be received here in about ten days, when Judge C. F. McLaughlin, who is disqualified in the case, will secure another judge to come to Columbus for the purpose of fixing a sixth date for their execution by hanging, same to be arranged for here.

Havana, November 19.—(AP)—The Haitian steamer Villan de Cayes, with more than 200 laborers on board, bound for Santiago de Cuba for the sugar cane fields, sank Monday.

The engineer and two seamen were picked up by the British steamer Wanderer and landed at Aux Cayes, Haiti.

Ten naval planes from the American naval base at Guantanamo have been searching the Caribbean between Cuba and Haiti for other survivors of the wreck. Several American torpedo boat destroyers joined in the search today.

News of the sinking of the steamer was received by her consignees at Santiago today.

The Villan de Cayes sailed from Aux Cayes last Saturday. She was a vessel of 400 tons register. Since the vessel started for Santiago, high seas have been running in the Caribbean and fears had been expressed for her safety.

ANDREWS KILLS
ORDER TO REVOKE
ALCOHOL PERMITS

Pressure Hinted as Reason for Mysterious Rescinding of Order One Day After Issuance.

Washington, November 19.—The order which would have cancelled all alcohol permits December 31 has been suddenly revoked by Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews within 24 hours after it was issued.

Some mystery surrounded this sudden action and it is probable that the hard-hitting dry general has been subjected to terrific pressure.

In a letter to administrators, Andrews explained that the revocation "was ordered to avoid annoyance and hindrance to legitimate industry as congress and public policy clearly dictate that we shall do."

He also explained that it was "physically impossible to effect completely this year."

"To thus rush the business," he said in his letter of instruction to the prohibition administrators, "would of itself defeat the object, which is that ultimately no one shall hold a government permit unless, after careful investigation, the government is satisfied that he is worthy to hold a permit."

The original order was a blanket one that would have affected every user of alcohol. Its purpose was to give government agents an opportunity to scrutinize each case closely and stop the leaks to bootleggers which have been a subject of severe complaint by Governor Pinchot and other drys.

Forward steps in the road-building program throughout Georgia was given further impetus Thursday when two more counties voted road bonds.

Richmond county by an overwhelming vote, authorized an issue of $750,000 with which to pave all trunk line highways to county lines. This amount is to be matched by federal and state funds, which means that Augusta and Richmond county will spend $1,500,000 for paved roads.

Macon county on Thursday voted $100,000 with which to pave the Dixie highway through the county, from the Peach county line on the north to the Sumter line on the south. This fund, matched with federal and state funds, will amount to $200,000. An election is to be called soon in Peach county when a bond issue will be voted upon

On the heels of Associated Press dispatches from Washington announcing that Postmaster General New has decided to establish air mail service between Atlanta and principal Florida cities, Mayor Walter A. Sims late Wednesday called upon William A. Hansell, chief of construction, to rush to completion work on Candler field, the municipal landing site.

Rush work in putting into excellent shape the city's landing field is ordered so that Atlanta may offer a suitable and desirable landing site for the government planes, the mayor stated.

Mayor Sims also dispatched a letter to Postmaster General New telling him of progress being made on the field and appraising him of advantages which Atlanta holds forth as a distributing center for mail between the south and east. He said that Candler field will accommodate any size plane manufactured.

Will Save 10 Hours.

When the air mail line is established between Atlanta and Florida points, local business men will be able to save 10 hours in sending letters to Miami, slightly less than eight hours to Jacksonville, and 12 hours to Tampa, Postmaster Edwin C. Large pointed out Thursday.

Mayor Sims Postmaster Large, Alderman W. B. Hartfield, of the third ward, member of the aviation committee of city council, and others interested in Atlanta's future as an air port and center of air mail operation for the southeast, Thursday stated that although no official announcement of the request for bids for the proposed air mail route from Jacksonville to Tampa and Miami, and a later development to include Atlanta, had been received by them, they were not surprised by the announcement as they have been working on the project for many weeks.

The department lets air mail contracts to private corporations and individuals, and allows the contracting concern as much as 80 per cent of the revenue. It also permits the contractor to the city to provide adequate landing field and mechanical requirements.

Condition of Queen Mother
Of Britain Somewhat Better

ALEXANDRA STRICKEN WITH HEART ATTACK

London, November 19.—(AP)—The British capital experienced emotion and dread this afternoon at the news that the beloved queen-mother, Alexandra, whose 81st birthday falls on December 1, had been stricken with a heart attack at her country home, Sandringham house.

The first official bulletin announced that Alexandra was critically ill, and this gave rise to the gravest anxiety that death might be expected soon.

Queen Alexandra's illness developed suddenly. Yesterday she took her usual drive. When the heart attack came this morning, a local practitioner was called, and Sir Thomas Harder, physician to the Prince of Wales, was summoned from London. Soon after his examination, it was announced that no further bulletins would be issued until 10 a. m. tomorrow.

For the lord mayor's official welcome on his safe return from South America were not canceled and other members of the royal family, including the Duke and Duchess of York, are remaining in London, instead of going to the aged queen's bedside, as would have been the case if all hope were given up.

At 10 o'clock tonight, the queen-mother was completely conscious and seemed not to be losing ground.

Weycross, Ga., November 19.—(Special).—As a result of a long family feud which culminated in a shooting at the home of a neighbor about two miles from Weycross this afternoon Steve Jeffers is dead and his wife is in a critical condition at the King's Daughters hospital, suffering from gunshot wounds, while Bob Jeffers is being held in the Weycross county jail charged with the murder of his brother.

Bad Feeling.

For a number of years there has been bad feeling existing between the members of the Jeffers family. Several law suits have been fought out in the local courts, in which the members of the family have been principals pitted against each other. Some time ago the barn of one of the brothers was burned, and an indictment was sought against the other brother, charging him with the burning.

When the officers arrived at the scene of the shooting today, they found Steve Jeffers dead, with a gunshot wound in his left side. It is believed that he died instantly. Mrs. Jeffers was in a wagon with wounds in the left shoulder and breast.

Mrs. Jeffers was the only eyewitness to the tragedy. She stated to officers that she and her husband were leaving the home of Willie Strickland, a neighbor, when they saw Bob Jeffers jump a fence at his home nearby and start toward them with a gun. She stated that Bob fired the first shot which struck her in the left shoulder.

Bob Jeffers claims that he was approaching his home when a shot, which struck his horse, was fired. This caused the frightened animal to run away and throw him out of the wagon. It was then, he stated, that he fired the shots which he claims were in self-defense.

Calm After Act.

When officers arrived to arrest Jeffers they found him calmly playing with his little daughter on the front porch of his home. When he saw the officers he stated that he was ready to go with them. He further stated that he was sorry to have shot his brother, but that it was necessary to protect his own life.

Three Bandits Hunted in Florida for Killing Charles
Coreile, of Jackson.

Fort Pierce, Fla., November 19.—Okeechobee police searched a swamp area of 15 miles Thursday night in an effort to track down three bandits, believed to be the murderers of the man whose body was found yesterday floating in Lake Okeechobee, riddled with bullets and with his neck broken.

Early Thursday evening, the body was identified as that of Charles Coreile, 40, of Jackson, Ga., a construction man. The body was identified by one of his employees.

Coreile was said by the Okeechobee police to have been returning to a construction camp early Saturday evening with the payroll for his camp. At a turn in the road it was believed that his automobile, which was found abandoned, was held up by bandits armed with rifles.

Police believe that after Coreile was killed, his car was smashed in with a club and his neck broken in an effort to conceal the man's identity, and that the body subsequently was thrown into the lake.

The abandonment of the car a few miles from the scene of the supposed holdup, and the disappearance from a construction camp of three men who recently came here to work on a railroad job, sent Okeechobee police into the marshes several miles from the city, where it was thought that these men might be in hiding.

Clerical delegates chosen on the first ballot are Dr. W. A. Shelton, of Atlanta; Dr. J. H. Eakes, of Griffin; Dr. C. C. Jarrell, of Atlanta.

On the second ballot Rev. W. P. King, of Gainesville, was elected.

Interest in the unification agitation is responsible for the strenuous situation relative to clerical delegates. Of the four clerical delegates so far chosen three of them are in favor of the proposed plan, while Dr. Eakes is strongly opposed to it. No one can

Broad Policy Outlined by President Which He Hopes American Busi-

BY ROBERT D. LUSK.
United News Staff Correspondent.

New York, November 19.—American business has been responsible in a great measure for the peace of the world, President Coolidge told representatives of industry and commerce at the 157th annual banquet of the chamber of commerce of the state of New York, Thursday night.

Loans of American money to be used for the maintenance of great military establishments abroad, he said, ought to be discouraged.

What the American business man has done to stabilize the world since the war has marked a new epoch in international relations, the president declared. He appealed for a continuation of this policy.

Coolidge's references to the part American business had played in post-war peace and reconstruction were greeted with frequent two and three-minute outbursts of applause.

The banquet was the occasion for the most enthusiastic reception Mr. Coolidge has yet received in New York city. Two thousand persons heard his speech, and he was cheered for five minutes when introduced by the president of the chamber, Mrs. Coolidge was greeted with a similarly prolonged ovation when she entered the balcony.

Feel Marks New Epoch.

"No positive and constructive accomplishment of the past five years compares with the support which America has contributed to the financial stability of the world," Mr. Coolidge said. "It clearly marks a new epoch."

American business must accept this new responsibility, he declared.

"America must either perform her full share in the accomplishment of this great world destiny, or fail," the president said.

Before a great group of industrial leaders in the world's greatest commercial center the president outlined the policy which he hoped American business would follow. He spoke of the relation between business and the government. He pointed out that the policy of the government entailed as little interference as possible with business.

The president pointed with pride to the great strides which have been made in industry and commerce in the above

LUKEMAN COMING TO RESUME WORK

Augustus Lukeman, sculptor of the Stone Mountain Confederate memorial, will arrive in Atlanta Monday to resume his work on the mountain side. A telegram to this effect was sent by Hollins N. Randolph, president of the Memorial association, to Mrs. Frank W. Harrold, president general of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, now in convention at Hot Springs, Ark. Mr. Randolph's telegram to Mrs. Harrold follows: "Please convey our greetings to the Daughters of the Confederacy and advise them that memorial hall model is finished and en route here from New York; that master model of central group is nearing completion and that Mr. Lukeman will be here Monday to resume work on the mountain." Completion of the model for the memorial hall to be cut into the heart of the mountain is an event of interest to women throughout the south on account of the fact that the hall is to be dedicated to the women of the Confederacy. In the center of the hall will be an immense block of stone, from which will be carved a symbolic figure representing women of the south. It was stated by Mr. Randolph that this figure will surpass in magnitude the colossal figure of Lincoln on the Lincoln memorial at Washington, D. C.

NEWTON TO ENTERTAIN "TEN" CLUB TUESDAY

F. J. Paxon, scribe of "The Ten" club announced Thursday that the club will be the guests of Louis D. Newton at an entertainment at the Biltmore hotel Tuesday, November 24, at 4:30 o'clock. James B. Nevin, editor of the Atlanta Georgian, John S. Cohen, editor of the Atlanta Journal, and Clark Howell, editor of The Atlanta Constitution are expected as guests.

"DOUBLE DECKER" STREETS PLANNED

Two streets with scarcely any grade for vehicular and pedestrian traffic, connecting Whitehall and Central avenue over Wall street and over Alabama street, are embraced in the modified plan for construction of the $2,000,000 "twin viaducts" over the railroad tracks at Central avenue and at Pryor street, it was learned Thursday. This will give Wall street and Alabama street what are known as "double decker" streets.

These two streets are to be about the height of the second floor of the buildings now located on those streets or about 20 feet above the present streets. The modified plan, it was said, would call for filling in a small portion of Alabama street east of Whitehall street. The new street would be the width of the present Alabama street and would have little, if any grade, it was further declared. Under this plan there would be no means of entrance into Whitehall street from the present Alabama street except by means of the new street, it was pointed out. This may result in re-routing of the street from between Whitehall and Central avenue. Work on Modified Plan. Walter P. Schurz, Memphis engineer who drew the four original viaduct plans, in collaboration with Engineer Young of the Atlanta Joint Terminals and C. E. Kauffman, engineer in charge of bridges and estimates in the city construction department, began work Thursday on the modified plan as agreed upon at a conference Wednesday. This conference was attended by the subcommittee of the viaduct commission, composed of council representatives and citizens: Mayor Sims, C. A. Wickersham, president of the Atlanta Joint Terminals and president of the A. & W. P. railroad and W. R. Cole, president of the N. C. & St. L. railroad. Decision was reached at the conference to make the southern terminus of the two viaducts at Hunter street, thereby eliminating the so-called "Hunter street dip," as provided in the original plan to divert the viaducts from Hunter street east to the state capital. There will be scarcely any grade to Hunter street under the modified plan, it was declared. Decision to eliminate that part of the plan to require the railroads to lower their tracks six feet will mean that the height of the viaducts will be increased from 18 to 24 feet, it was said. Mayor Sims was optimistic Thursday over prospects for the early adoption of a plan that will be satisfactory to the public, the city government and the railroads. "I expect to have the modified plans within the next week, and accordingly will issue another call for the viaduct commission," the mayor said. That the modified plan has the approval of the city government, the property owners interested and the railroads was assured in statements issued by Mayor Sims and President Cole immediately following the conference.

The immediate occasion of Mr. Hudson's visit, which happens to be his first to the southeast, is the activity of the Milton Sills unit, which has been on location in Birmingham for the past two weeks. After a survey of the steel mills at Gary, Ind., Mr. Hudson chose the famous Birmingham steel plant as being ideal for the atmosphere of "Men of Steel." Accordingly he dispatched the company under supervision of Fred Stanley, able member of his production staff, with George Archibald in directorial command. Now Mr. Hudson is making one of the quick dashes so often necessary in picture production, to give his personal supervision to important details.

FIRST NATIONAL MOVIE LEADER VISITS CITY

Earl J. Hudson, former Chicago newspaper man, now supervisor of production for First National Pictures, Inc., arrived in Atlanta Thursday afternoon where he spent a few hours en route to Birmingham, where one of the major First National units is engaged in production of "Men of Steel" with Milton Sills in the starring role.

Instead of taking the Birmingham special which would have landed him directly on location Mr. Hudson chose the Crescent limited in order to spend a few hours in Atlanta, getting a close-up of the south's most enterprising city, and incidentally to renew acquaintance with Sig Samuels and Willard Patterson of the Metropolitan theater, which has been the home of First National pictures since they came into being. Although he is the youngest production executive holding a major position in the industry, being only 32, Mr. Hudson has achieved wide fame in production annals. Born in Elgin, Ill., Mr. Hudson broke into the newspaper game as a boy via Chicago dailies. From the fourth estate he was graduated into the publicity department of pictures, and from publicity to production. Three years ago when Richard Rowland became general manager of First National pictures, Earl Hudson was his first opportunity to become production.

His adaptation of "Flaming Youth" served to bring Colleen Moore from obscurity to leading lady status; his supervision of "Lilies of the Field" for Corinne Griffith added another substantial rung in his ladder of fame. Edna Ferber's "So Big," starring Colleen Moore, strengthened the prediction of critics that Earl Hudson's genius was only beginning to expand.

'Endless Chain' Selling System Dealt Death Blow

The death knell of the so-called "endless chain" system of merchandising was sounded Wednesday when Mayor Walter Sims approved an ordinance adopted by council Monday forbidding continuance of the practice. The mayor's action marked the final chapter of a strenuous fight waged by the Atlanta Retail Merchants' association which claimed banishment of the system would save thousands of dollars to Atlanta buyers, and at the same time, would rid the city of an undesirable system of selling goods to retail buyers. C. V. Hohenstein, secretary of the association, exhibited to the mayor Wednesday a letter from City Attorney Mayson, who gave the opinion that an ordinance prohibiting the "endless chain" system was entirely legal. The mayor promptly attached his signature of approval.

Bass Junior High school and before her marriage was a teacher at the old Boulevard school. She was the daughter of Joel A. Tuttle, pioneer Atlanta contractor and Mrs. Amanda J. Tuttle, a charter member of the Central Presbyterian church. Mrs. Smith was a devoted member of the church and took part in its activities.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. J. C. Bagwell and Mrs. Lindy Forrester and a son, Moreland Smith, student at Georgia School of Technology. Another son, the late Harrison Smith, was killed during the world war.

VISITOR EMPHASIZES SELF-RISING FLOUR

An interesting and interested visitor to Atlanta during the past few days was Dr. W. H. Strowd, Ph. D., of Nashville, Tenn., executive secretary and manager of the Soft Wheat Millers' association. Dr. Strowd was in Atlanta for the purpose of interesting various grocery merchants in the city in the economical factors of self-rising flour. Incidentally, he has been stressing to Atlanta food distributors the importance of seeing that the blue shield of the Soft Wheat Millers' association appears on all self-rising flour sold by them.

The Soft Wheat Millers' association is a nationally known organization, composed of more than 60 soft wheat millers, and a uniform shield, which is always printed in blue, is placed upon sacks of self-rising flour milled by members of this association. Dr. Strowd is a chemist by profession. He has been for some time the executive secretary and manager of the association. He is a native of North Carolina, being educated at the university in his native state, and at the University of Wisconsin.

He was at one time on the faculty of the latter institution, and for 10 years was chief chemist of Wisconsin's agricultural department. In his present capacity with the Soft Wheat Millers' association he supervises the research problems in home economics, chemistry, and nutrition conducted by his staff of experts in the association's laboratories at Nashville, as well as the field activities of home economics representatives and other publicity work throughout the south. Research work of the association includes devising new recipes, studies in the diet of the southern people, improving methods of flour milling, and other problems of interest to the soft wheat miller and his customers. Another important function is the testing of all leavening agents used by the members and careful analysis of all flours carrying the blue shield emblem of the association.

"Self-rising flour carrying this emblem," said Dr. Strowd, "is guaranteed to be pure soft wheat flour, together with the highest grade of phosphate and soda for leavening, and salt for seasoning. All the 60 or more leading mills using this emblem on their self-rising flour guarantee its purity and satisfactory baking qualities. "Soft wheat," continued Dr. Strowd, "is the only wheat that will thrive in the south, and that is probably one reason why the south became famous for its hot biscuits, for no other flour can approach it for this purpose, as well as for pastries, cakes, pies, etc. Self-rising flour meets the modern demand for an economical, time-saving flour. It enables the southerner to have his favorite hot biscuits without drudgery and long hours in the kitchen, just as he had them in the old days of inexpensive kitchen help. Also, since the flour, leavening, and salt are carefully weighed and mixed by machinery, self-rising flour is an insurance against inefficient cooks. "As the Florida state chemist recently stated in his official report, 'since the advent of self-rising flour, the soggy biscuit and the disagreeable yellow biscuit have almost disappeared, thanks to this flour, and it is now possible to get good biscuits almost anywhere.'"

Dr. Strowd left the city Wednesday for a visit to his old home in North Carolina, where he will spend his Thanksgiving on a hunting trip. Heavy Chaingang Sentences Given In Liquor Cases Liquor law violators Thursday fared badly at the hands of Judge Jesse Wood, of the criminal court of Atlanta, when four of them drew heavy fines and chaingang sentences of five years. All the gang terms were suspended on payment of the fines except in one case. One of the defendants was a white woman, Mrs. J. T. Schaub. She drew a fine of $100 and a 12 months' term when arraigned on charges of having had nine gallons of rum when officers raided her home at 20 West Peachtree place on June 20, 1923. Wednesday she was haled into court on another liquor count, but was freed. Courtroom attaches recognized her and dug into the files for an old indictment. She was placed on trial on this charge Thursday. Soon after her release on bond in the 1923 case, she disappeared, declared forfeited and bondsmen satisfied the claims of the state. She had been disposed of properly. J. T. Ramey was fined $250 and given a 12 months' suspended sentence. Ramey paid the fine. He was charged with having stored 65 gallons of rum in a garage on Houston street June 20. He pleaded guilty. Dave Williams was haled to serve a $300 fine. There were two cases against the defendant—one charging him with having 14 1-2 gallons at 22 Horton street on September 20. He entered a guilty plea in this case and months' sentence which was suspended on payment of the fine. He got a straight chaingang term of one year a second charge of possession of a gallon of liquor on October 4. He denied this count. Will Mitchell was fined $200 and given a year's suspended sentence when he was convicted on charges of having two gallons of liquor at his home on Auburn avenue on October 25.

M. S. ENOCHS TO HEAD SASH, DOOR LEADERS

After electing M. S. Enoch, of Jackson, Miss., president for the ensuing year and, enjoying a trip to Stone Mountain, members of the Southern Sash, Door and Millwork Manufacturers' association ended their two-day convention Thursday afternoon. Sessions were held at the Biltmore hotel and some of the leading men engaged in this line of work in the south delivered addresses on technical questions relating to the industry.

A. S. Parker, of High Point, N. C., was elected first vice president at the final session Thursday, while W. P. McBroom, of Chattanooga, Tenn., and C. B. Harmon, of Atlanta, were re-elected second vice president and secretary, respectively. Delegates were present at the convention from all the southern states while several officers of the national association of millwork manufacturers were guests at the convention. Local members of the association provided an entertainment program which included a banquet at the Biltmore hotel, a theater party and a sight-seeing trip to points of interest in and around Atlanta. Directors of the association for the ensuing year were elected as follows: C. H. Dudley, Atlanta; S. A. Marshall, Rome, Ga.; J. Harold Duller, Augusta, Ga.; P. F. Conway, Danville, Va.; C. G. Bussey, Jacksonville, Fla.; F. C. Turner, Mobile, Ala.; A. I. Chavannes, Knoxville, Tenn.; J. H. Cambree, Jackson, Miss.; J. H. Jones, New Orleans, La.; E. H. Ellsberry, Pine Bluff, Ark.; Albert Stevens, Jr., San Antonio, Texas; W. G. Sneed, Greenwood, S. C., and G. W. Wearn, Charlotte, N. C.

No More Piles

Thousands Bless Dr. Leonhardt, the Physician Who Discovered This Common Sense Remedy

If you think that the surgeon's knife is the only method of escape from the misery of piles, it's because you haven't heard of the new treatment known as Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID. This doctor's treatment is internal. By experimenting for years he discovered the exact cause of piles and then went further and compounded a remedy that would remove the cause. Dr. Leonhardt wants every sufferer to benefit by his discovery and so that there will be no doubting or delay, Jacobs' Drug Stores and all druggists are authorized to sell HEM-ROID with guarantee that it will do as stated or money back. On that honorable basis every sufferer should secure a package of Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID today.—(adv.)

SEVEN BURGLARY CASES REPORTED

Seven small burglary losses were reported to police Thursday. They included the theft of a quantity of silverware from the residence of Mrs. C. L. Fain, of 6 Fairview road. Mrs. Fain told detectives that she missed a dozen silver knives, a similar amount of silver forks and teaspoons, a dozen tablespoons, a butter knife and a sugar shell. All of the silverware was engraved with the initials "E. M. F."

The losses included a jersey milk cow reported strayed, lost or stolen. The owner is Mrs. R. T. Burnley, of 96 Springdale road. Mrs. R. C. Ayers, of Ayerway, reported the loss of a heavy blue overcoat. Other losses follow: Gilbert Little, of 592 Ponce de Leon avenue, grey stripe suit, stolen from automobile parked at 50 North Forsyth street; Mrs. S. A. Furr, of 155 Lakewood avenue, one Waltham clock stolen from automobile; Mrs. A. A. Austin, suit case containing brown cloak; C. L. Williams, of 104 Polo drive, bicycle stolen from Calhoun school.

Burglars who entered the store of Chamberlain-Johnson-DuBois company late Wednesday night were frustrated when the A. D. T. burglar alarm system notified police and detectives of the attempted robbery. Several thousand dollars worth of expensive merchandise was found piled on the floor where the burglars left it as they narrowly escaped capture by the police. Entrance to the store was gained by "jimmying" a window on the third floor from the roof of an adjoining building, it was found.

FEDERATION LAUDED FOR 'PASSION PLAY'

The Atlanta board of education expressed appreciation of the action of the Federation of Women's Clubs in bringing to this city a motion picture of the Freidrich Schiller Play, in resolutions adopted at a meeting on November 10. "This picture," the resolution reads, "has been highly recommended by influential people who have seen it, for its spiritual and educational value. Therefore, be it resolved that the board of education go on record as approving the action of the city federation in bringing this picture to Atlanta and for making a special price for school children at the Wednesday matinee."

State Evidence In Arson Trial Near Completion

The state's testimony was practically ended when Judge G. H. Howard's division of Fulton superior court adjourned Thursday in the case of Mrs. F. E. Leathers and her two daughters, Mrs. M. E. Heard and Miss Annie Mae Leathers, who are accused of burning their home. Assistant Solicitor John Hudson stated he has only one other witness—Rufus Gossett—to call when court opens this morning. After that the state will rest.

The aged mother and her two daughters went on trial Thursday morning, and the state spent the entire day in an attempt to fix the blame for the burning of the home on the defendants. The state showed by witnesses that the house at 85 Racheler avenue was burned last July 9, and that kerosene soaked rags, paper and other inflammable material were found by investigators. Grady Leathers, a son of Mrs. Leathers, also was indicted in connection with the fire, but he is a fugitive. The state contends that the Leathers burned the house in order to collect insurance for the home and furniture.

Rheumatic Pains Are Danger Signals

Bad Kidney Trouble, Even Paralysis May Be Just Ahead of You—Begin Taking Taylor's Blood Medicine Today and Stop the Trouble

You, too, may benefit greatly by taking this long established and thoroughly guaranteed medicine. Don't put it off. Now is the time. Start taking it today.
Taylor's Blood Medicine contains Iodine of Potash and other vegetable ingredients, such as Sarsaparilla, Danielion, Gentian, Wintergreen and Sassafras, which act as a fine tonic to the stomach, while the Iodine of Potash absorbed by the blood destroys the poisonous acids, which lead to rheumatism and paralysis.
Get a bottle of Taylor's Blood Medicine today from your druggist. It will stop those headaches, backaches, pains in the fingers, arms and shoulders, hips and knees. It will bring weight if you are thin and pale. Taylor's Blood Medicine is purely vegetable, pleasant to take, and regardless of how weak your stomach is will tone up your system and make you feel fine.
Getting rid of rheumatism costs much less than having it. Taylor's Blood Medicine will save the large losses caused by the disease. Sufferers in almost every case find their wages reduced because they can't work as long or as well because of pain and sluggishness. Long lay-offs often result if rheumatism is allowed to get a hold in the system. Figures show that many women and men become dependent on relatives or state institutions when still comparatively young, because rheumatism prevents them earning a living for themselves.
When rheumatism is considered from the standpoint of dollars, it is one of the most costly ailments. Taylor's Blood Medicine, however, makes that they can tell when it is going to relieving the trouble so inexpensive that no one need suffer pain or financial loss.

When rheumatism begins to set in, the first advice of physicians is to "Look to your blood." Bad blood is the basis of rheumatic troubles and the proper way to relieve these is to correct conditions in the blood. Those who have rheumatic tendencies and do not take the disease itself should take strenuous precautions not to allow the blood to advance into a rheumatic state. Taylor's Blood Medicine should be taken by such people, thereby preventing untold suffering in the future.
"But how can I tell when I have rheumatic tendencies?" ask many. Bad blood which causes running sores, blotched complexion, pimples and other skin diseases show an unhealthy condition. Taylor's Blood Medicine by purifying the blood is a wonderful aid in clearing skin ailments as well as preventing rheumatism.
Often men and women proudly brag that they can tell when it is going to rain by pains in their leg joints and feet. They think theirs an unusual condition. It is not. Such pains caused by dampness in the air demand immediate attention. They are a sign of rheumatic conditions and by blood purification can be prevented. Taylor's Blood Medicine will take your limbs out of the weather forecasting class and make them painless in the dampest atmosphere.
Taylor's Blood Medicine is not a new, untried remedy. For over fifteen years it has served rheumatic sufferers in a most satisfactory manner. Previous to its extended sale this prescription was widely used by successful physicians in the treatment of rheumatism with surprising results. Taylor's Blood Medicine now embodies the benefits of over twenty years' continual use—twenty years paved with outstanding success in the treatment of all rheumatic ailments.—(adv.)

American Army Leading Way In Constructive Development Of Peace, Says War Secretary

Business of War Department Not To Prepare for Conflict, But Against Fighting, He Declares.

St. Louis, Mo., November 19.—(AP) Peace-time importance of the war department and United States army was stressed in an address here tonight by Secretary of War Dwight P. Davis, who declared one of his most important duties was to bring the American people into a more intimate contact with the army. The address was at a home-coming dinner in his honor.

The new cabinet member explained that aside from keeping itself fit to bear the first brunt of war, the army had led and would continue to lead the way in the constructive developments of peace.

Prepare Against War.
"I have often thought there is something of error about the designation of the great government department of which I am the civilian head, as a department of war. Such a name implies, at least, that all of its activities have to do with making war or with preparing to make war. That is not a fact. It is not the business of the war department to prepare for war but to prepare against war. The war department cannot declare war. Congress declares war; the army ends war."

Briefly sketching the history of the American army as a fighting machine, he enumerated these activities as follows:

Activities of Army.
The training of citizens through annual military encampments, reviving of inland waterway commerce, advancing radio and telegraph communication, promoting civil services for industrial and agricultural purposes, exploiting of aviation fields, developing aerial photography for peaceful pursuits, and assisting in medical experimentation and relief work.

"Did you know that the army maintains a radio system which extends from Washington to all the principal cities throughout the nation and handles a tremendous volume of departmental business affecting every activity of our government?"

"Did you know that today the public health service is using a gas for the fumigation of ships which was developed by the army chemical warfare service?"

Carry on Experiments.
"The chemical warfare service is carrying on important experiments in the use of gas for the eradication of the boll weevil cotton. The boll weevil costs growers of cotton hundreds of millions of dollars annually, and it is hoped that a chemical compound will be developed which will rid our cotton fields of this pest."

"Did you know that the chemical warfare service has produced the only chemical compound suitable for the protection of miners from deadly carbon monoxide gas?"

"Tear gas is one of the most effective weapons used today in protection of banks and other institutions. It is also used extensively by police in the capture of barricaded criminals and in the suppression of serious riots."

Lauds Air Service.
"Every American knows that the United States army aviators have encircled the globe by air. But little most of us know about the less conspicuous work which the air service is performing."

"The air service patrol, by discovering and reporting by radio the existence and location of forest fires, has saved millions of dollars worth of timber from destruction."

Aerial photography, he said, had not been invented for military purposes but it was adapted to photographing sections of the United States and insular possessions for the use of the corps of engineers and the United States geological survey in the making of maps.

In commercial aviation, the secretary pointed to the development of airways by the establishment of landing fields. At present, he said, the army air service was working on a radio beacon device for guiding airplanes through darkness and fog.

MAYOR KILLS ACT REQUIRING TEST FOR PLUMBERS
Mayor Sims has vetoed an ordinance adopted by city council at its last session requiring any person engaged in the plumbing business as a journeyman plumber or as a journeyman plumber to stand examination before a board of examiners and obtain a certificate of competency. The ordinance also provided an examination fee of $5.

The mayor said he had been requested to disapprove the ordinance by a large number of property owners, who had expressed a desire to be heard. The mayor also said he doubted the wisdom of requiring men, who operate and finance the business, and who are not actually engaged in the trade to stand the proposed examination.

Commission To Hear Protest on Paper Box Rates December 3
Hearing on a protest against rates on paper boxes between Atlanta and Griffin and Woodbury has been scheduled before the Georgia public service commission for December 3. The commission some time ago prescribed rates on this commodity between various points in the state. Since then carriers have published rates between the points involved and the Atlanta freight bureau has complained that they are higher than rates prescribed by the commission for equal or shorter distances.

On December 15 the commission will hold its regular quarterly meeting for consideration of proposed changes and addition to the southern classification on freight rates. In May, 1923, the commission adopted the system of holding these public hearings on the southern classification every three months. The December meeting is filed under the name of E. H. Dulany, chairman of the southern classification committee.

The commission has asked the interstate commerce commission to postpone its hearing on disputes over rates and gravel rates in the southeast until February 1 or later. This action is due to the fact that E. M. Price, rate expert for the commission, is a member of the committee of experts on the general investigation of western rates, and the commission is taking part in proceedings before the interstate commerce commission on application of western carriers for an increase in rates generally. Both these hearings have been scheduled for Dallas, Texas, December 7, and inasmuch as the principles involved may have a bearing on the Georgia rates on sand and gravel, it is thought advisable to postpone the sand and gravel hearing until the others are disposed of.

U. S. C. AWARDS SERVICE CROSSES

Hot Springs, Ark., November 19.—(AP)—After having spent most of the day in electing officers, choosing Mrs. St. John Ellison Lawton, of Charleston, S. C., as president general, delegates to the annual convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy tonight enjoyed a historical business meeting.

The outstanding event of the program was the awarding of crosses of service to Colonel Warren Jefferson Davis, of San Diego, Cal., and First Lieutenant Samuel T. Smith, of Conway, Ark. The national organization has in recent years made it a custom to present these medals to two men who were credited with acts of bravery during the world war and who are descendants of Confederate soldiers or sailors.

Mrs. Frank Harold, of Americus, Ga., the retiring president general, related to the delegates the service records of Colonel Davis and Lieutenant Smith. The crosses were presented by Miss Mary B. Poppenheim, of Charleston, S. C., a former president general.

Mrs. Harold has received a telegram from Augustus Lukeman, sculptor of the Stone Mountain Memorial association, informing the Daughters of the Confederacy that reports that the association here represents must have additional space on the mountain in order to carve the monument to Confederate veterans are not correct. Another message received by Mrs. Harold is from Hollins N. Randolph, president of the Stone Mountain Memorial association. Mr. Randolph requests that Mrs. Harold convey the greetings of his organization to the Daughters of the Confederacy and advise the delegates that the memorial hall model of Stone Mountain is finished and en route to Atlanta from New York. He also advises that the master model of the central group is nearing completion and that Mr. Lukeman will arrive in Atlanta next Monday to resume work on the mountain.

HINT OF POLITICS STIRS CONFERENCE

now say that the lineup will be for the remaining delegates to be chosen. The laymen of the conference elected their full delegation of eight representatives on one ballot, having agreed upon the names they would support. Laymen thus selected are Sam Tate, of Tate, H. Y. McCord, of Atlanta; R. J. Guinn, of Atlanta; M. S. Bell, of Milledgeville; M. J. Daniel, of Griffin; L. S. Arrington, of Augusta; M. M. Purks, of Milledgeville; J. B. Hutchins, of Cedartown. Lay alternates are Paul Aiken, of Cartersville; Mrs. H. H. Dean, of Gainesville; J. B. Hutchins, of Cedartown, and W. E. Thompson, of LaGrange.

Charges of politics are being made at this conference in connection with the election of delegates. When the laymen held a caucus and named their ticket, all of whom are opposed to the unification plan, some ministers charged upon the names they would support for the place of delegates and naming only men opposed to the plan. Supporters of the plan among the ministers charge that the laymen's political methods are being used in conference elections.

A paper signed by Dr. C. C. Jarrell as chairman of a gathering that formulated it was circulated about the conference grounds today. Major R. J. Guinn, of Atlanta, speaking from a point of personal privilege, denied the use of such methods, and stated plainly just what the laymen did and told of the earnest spirit that prevailed, and the complete harmony existing.

A notable matter to receive attention later in the week is the recommendation of a committee appointed for investigation that the time of holding the conference be changed from fall to June or July. The paper was laid on the table for the time being, and will be brought up later. The paper recommends that the date be changed year after next.

The convention bureau of the Athens chamber of commerce today asked the conference to endorse its invitation that the session of the general conference be held in that city. The conference here heartily approved the invitation and will endeavor to have the quadrennial session brought to Athens.

A feature of the conference today was the semi-centennial sermon delivered by Bishop W. A. Candler, who was admitted to this conference on trial just 50 years ago. A visitor to the conference today was Bishop W. N. Ainsworth, of Macon. Dr. Luther E. Todd, of St. Louis, general secretary of the board of finance, stated to the conference today that $1,000,000 had already been received on the $10,000,000 subscribed for the superannuated endowment fund reach $2,000,000 by Christmas.

The night session was devoted to the anniversary of the Sunday school of Atlanta, was the speaker of the occasion.

to pave the highway through that county from the Macon county line on the south to connect with the concrete paving on the north at the Bibb county line. What this is doing, the Dixie highway will be paved from Macon to Americus.

The election Thursday followed closely the favorable elections held Tuesday when Whitfield county voted $400,000 road bonds and Habersham voted an issue of $225,000 highway bonds to complete the link in the Atlanta-to-Ashville scenic highway. Bibb county commissioners also agreed Tuesday to assist in paving six miles in Lamar county of the Atlanta-Macon highway.

Two other counties are expected to vote highway bonds on next Tuesday. Burke county is to vote upon an issue of $600,000 with Wayneboro voting upon $75,000 additional for county purposes and Jefferson county is to vote upon an issue of $225,000 for road purposes.

Other counties recently voting bond issues for roadwork are: Hart, $200,000; Henry, $225,000; Muscogee, $1,600,000. Six counties extending from Savannah to the Florida line, through Brunswick and Darien also have voted $800,000 with which to pave the coastal highway from Savannah to the Florida line.

and that later an extension made to Atlanta, Ga., is now ready to receive air mail. We have a landing field which will be in shape this week or next at the outside, and I will be glad if you would include Atlanta in the proposed route at the beginning and end of the line and then extend to Atlanta. If the latter is done, the line in the way of putting this service in at the same time Jacksonville and Miami service is situated, this obstacle has been removed and we are in shape to land planes at least by the end of the month.

Please advise me if it will be possible to include Atlanta in the original route, and oblige.

Very truly,
WALTER A. SIMS, Mayor.

AIR MAIL SERVICE
PLANS ANNOUNCED.

Washington, November 19.—(AP)—Air mail service between Florida's three principal cities, Jacksonville, Tampa and Miami, by April 1, next, will be extended to Atlanta. Later than June 1 has been decided upon by Postmaster General Now.

The postmaster general today invited bids to be opened January 18 for the operation of a contract air mail route between the four cities, which is believed will materially expedite a large quantity of important mail between the Florida points and the principal northern financial and industrial centers through close train connections at Atlanta. There will be a daily service each way between the four cities, after the extension to Atlanta, with an average flying speed of approximately 90 miles an hour to be maintained over the 600-mile route.

The air mail postage rate of 10 cents an ounce will be charged and the contractor may receive up to 80 per cent of the revenue from air mail postage derived from letters carried.

Postal officials believe the route will be one of the most profitable in the air mail service. Connections with mail trains at Atlanta will place mail posted in Tampa and Miami one morning in the hands of the contractor at the evening of the next day.

Bids Are Invited.

The postmaster general today invited bids for the operation of a contract air mail route between the four cities. The bids will be opened here January 18. It is expected operation of the service will be completed by the end of the month. The route will connect the four cities and the principal northern financial and industrial centers through close train connections at Atlanta.

The schedule determined upon by the air mail service officials calls for departure of planes from Miami at 7 a. m., Tampa at 9:40 a. m., Jacksonville at 11:40 a. m., and arrival at Atlanta at 3 p. m. The southbound planes will leave Atlanta at 7 a. m., Jacksonville at 10:25 a. m., Tampa at 12:30 p. m., and arrive at Miami at 3 p. m. An average flying speed of approximately 90 miles an hour over the 600-mile route is stipulated.

In inviting bids the postmaster general included a stipulation as to the time of beginning service, a feature not included in previous air mail contracts. The service between Jacksonville, Tampa and Miami must be placed in operation not later than April 1, next, and the extension to Atlanta not later than June 1, next. The successful bidder may operate service over the entire route prior to those dates if he is prepared to do so. The contract will be limited to a four-year term.

The air mail postage rate of ten cents an ounce will be charged and the contractor may receive up to 80 per cent of the revenue from air mail postage derived from letters carried.

Postal officials believe the route will be one of the most profitable in the air mail service. They expect a large amount of intrastate business in Florida, in addition to heavy traffic from Florida points to northern centers and from the large cities of the north to Florida. Connections with mail trains at Atlanta will place mail posted in Tampa and Miami one morning in the hands of the contractor at the evening of the next day.

ALDERMEN VOTE FOR FIREMEN'S PAY

even should the people and the Georgia legislature approve the increase.

Hartsfield's Position.

Alderman W. B. Hartsfield, questioning Alderman J. L. Carpenter as to how the city could raise necessary funds to meet the proposed pay increase, brought from the latter the suggestion that "the city can find the money either by increasing tax assessments, increasing the water rate or increasing revenue from recorder's court fines."

Alderman J. L. McLendon was also in line with denunciation of any plan designed to increase tax assessments. "An increase in tax assessments would place a burden upon the people," he said.

Alderman Claude L. Ashley took the position that a flat increase to all employees of 10 per cent would be unfair.

"There are many employees in the city government working on starvation wages," the alderman said. "The clerk who is making $60 to $85 a month and who needs and deserves an increase would profit only by $6 or $8 a month under the proposed plan. The department head making $300 a month would receive an increase of $30 a month."

Apathy of Voters.

Alderman Duvall said that something should be done to awaken the people to their responsibilities. "There we have a city of more than 250,000 population and I doubt whether there are 10,000 registered voters," he said. "Thus a pitiful minority controls the big issues so vital to the city government."

Alderman Hartsfield put the board on notice that he was opposed to the proposed increase for the firemen. "I am going to see that the voters are enlightened before the day of the referendum," he said.

Alderman Hartsfield charged insincerity on the part of sponsors of the proposed measure to increase all city employees, declaring that the measure was not introduced until after council had ratified the firemen's petition.

Scale of Wages.

The proposed increases for the firemen would give privates during first year of service $1,700 a year; during their second year $1,800; during their third year $1,900, and during their fourth year of service and thereafter $2,100 a year or $175 a month. Officers in the department would be given proportionate raises. Firemen now are receiving a wage scale ranging from $125 to $140 a month, on the basis of years of service. Firemen say they are asking the same salaries as are paid mail carriers.

ence Thursday were necessarily postponed when Mr. Howard was held in court all day on another important case.

The state supreme court this week handed down a decision refusing the condemned youths a new trial, and there are now only three technical avenues for possible escape from death. One is by an extraordinary motion to the supreme court for a new trial, another is by an appeal to the United States supreme court, and the third is in the plea for commutation, which will be made to the prison commission and the governor.

The father of Coggeshall and his sister, Mrs. Bessie Bauman, are in the city and will discuss with Attorney Howard the best course open.

powers in aircraft strength, that its air equipment would be useless in the event of another war and that the deplorable condition of the nation's flying machines is a constant hazard and danger to the men in the air service.

Seeds at Gun Fire in the world.

Rickenbacker, picturesque conqueror of 26 enemy planes in the world war, flayed the condition of aircraft "unmercifully," and pointed "to the graveyard near flying fields" as proof substantiating Mitchell's charge that fliers "are used as pawns" and that their lives are endangered by poor equipment. He attacked the "negligence of the army in sending men aloft unequipped with parachutes."

"It's suicide, in my opinion," he testified.

Rickenbacker, like every other flier called before the jury of generals by Mitchell, scoffed at the boasted effectiveness of anti-aircraft gun fire. With others who preceded him he asserted ground fire is useless as a weapon against the plane.

HOME FOR GIRLS PRACTICING PRECEPTS

They are required to observe rules of the home, which are not drastic, and are put to work at various tasks which they are taught to cook, sew and do all kinds of fancy work and are furnished with clean and wholesome reading matter. They are given good food and beds and hot and cold baths. They are taken from the streets, courts, railroad stations and other places and given a comfortable home where they are made welcome.

In the last year, according to Mrs. Clower, not one girl has run away from the home, although the doors are never locked and they are allowed the freedom of the house and grounds.

"We keep the doors unlocked all the time and allow the girls all the reasonable privileges they would get in a real home," Mrs. Clower said. "The lights are put out at 9 o'clock at night and the girls arise at 6:45 o'clock in the morning. They romp and play between work hours, and during their work they are in pleasant and agreeable spirits."

Work of Institution.

Mrs. Clower said many of the girls are turned over to the home under probation from police courts. Others are sent to the home by the Travelers Aid, which finds girls without friends and homeless in the railroad stations. Some come to the home from private homes where the environment is not wholesome.

"On many occasions we have found innocent girls who have been unfortunate enough to live in places which were raided by police," Mrs. Clower said. "We have found these girls to be innocent and have provided them with a home and they have made good by obtaining positions and putting themselves on a self-sustaining basis. When they get ahead in life, they can make their way, we charge them for their board and several of them remain here in the home now and pay board. Two of them have savings accounts. One was married last Saturday in the parlor of the home. The girls are allowed to see relatives and friends on the evenings when they are in the general assembly room of the home."

During the course of a year several hundred girls are given the benefits of the service.

The Community Home for Girls is one of the beneficiaries of the Community Chest and virtually is dependent on these funds for its existence.

SHEANDOAH COURT GIVES RULING TODAY

charges against its former judge-advocate, the point was raised by Mrs. Davies before the court Tuesday and was met by the judge-advocate with the statement that, since actions of an officer of the court had been brought into question, the court under every known procedure had a right to inquire into his acts.

Washington, November 19.—Captain Paul Foley, naval lawyer, will know Friday morning whether the naval court investigating the Shenandoah disaster, believes with Mrs. Zachary Lansdowne, that he attempted to cover her by giving "twisted facts" on the crash.

Foley, who resigned as judge-advocate of the probe under Mrs. Lansdowne's charge, Thursday from the witness stand, denied that he had attempted to induce her to give false testimony.

The court announced it would decide the case Friday.

Tried to Defend Widow.

Foley, by being named "defendant" by the court, was placed on trial in what court had decided as being "adjudged proceedings" to the inquiry into the Shenandoah disaster. If the court finds him guilty, charges will be filed against the navy.

Foley, in making his denial, declared that he had made every effort to protect the widow of the command officer of the ill-starred airship. It was in her interest, he said, that he suggested to her a statement she could make when called before the court. It was to keep her from undergoing the ordeal of a lengthy examination, he said.

The court's decision will effectually end further investigation of the alleged coercion charge, but the probe into the Shenandoah disaster will be continuing.

Structure Called Sound.

On this phase of the inquiry Thursday, the court heard from Dr. L. S. Tuckermann, of the government's bureau of standards, that the structure of the destroyed dirigible was sound. Tuckermann has conducted an exhaustive test of the structural fragments of the ship. He testified that there was general corrosion on the frame, but not of sufficient depth to weaken it in his belief.

Testimony given Wednesday by Major Kennedy that the sleeves of the ship were tied, was contradicted by two of the survivors of the Shenandoah, Lieutenant P. E. Baugh and Lieutenant Rollin Meyer.

Commander Rosendahl testified that Commander Lansdowne had not objected to making the last flight of the ship he commanded.

"I think it is libelous and dishonorable to the memory of Commander Lansdowne to state that he objected to making the trip at that time in that weather," Rosendahl said.

Sessions on the crash inquiry will be resumed Friday.

TRIBUTE TO BUSINESS PAID BY COOLIDGE

lition of waste, declaring that it had been in no small part responsible "for the rich reward in the increasing comfort and living standards of the people." Along this same line of conservation of resources and energy lies the road of progress, he declared.

Declaring that the interests of true business and of the entire nation were now world-wide, Mr. Coolidge took up the foreign policy of the government, and said that these loans were made only if they were used to establish industry and support commerce abroad.

He said that the maintenance of great military establishments or to meet municipal expenses would be eliminated by government economy or supplied by taxation, they do not appear to serve a useful purpose and ought to be discarded.

Advocate World Court.

The president then renewed with vigor his plea for American adherence to the permanent court of international justice. In regard to the world court, he said:

"I can conceive of nothing that we could do, which involves assuming so few obligations on our part, that would be likely to prove of so much value to the world. Beyond its practical effect, which might be somewhat small, it would have a sentimental effect which would be tremendous. It would be public notice that the enormous influences of our country were to be cast upon the side of the enlightening processes of civilization. It would be the beginning of a new world spirit."

Coming as it did, just a few weeks before convening of the new congress, the president's address was taken, in a large measure, as a summation of the administration policy which Mr. Coolidge will outline in his message to congress.

Special Emphasis on Court.

The president took particular pains to emphasize the administration attitude on the world court, a matter which is scheduled to come before the senate December 17. Speaking of the settlement of foreign debts, he was careful to weave this problem into the fabric of his idealistic conception of the ultimate destiny of America and American business, for the administration can well expect generous support in the senate to its recent settlement with Italy.

Referring to the tariff, a question most likely to arise in a discussion of agricultural problems, Mr. Coolidge said that the administration favored a "moderate tariff."

In the development of the theme of true business, its place in the domestic structure and in the world-wide picture in which America has found itself a foremost figure, the president rose to new heights of idealism, reminiscent of his American Legion speech in Omaha.

True Mission of Business.

"True business," the president said, "represents the mutual organized effort of society to minister to the economic needs of civilization. It is an effort by which men provide for the material needs of each other. While it is not an end in itself, it is the important means for the attainment of a supreme end. It rests squarely on the law of service. It has for its main reliance truth and faith and justice. In its larger sense, it is one of the greatest contributing forces to the moral and spiritual advancement of the race."

On the specific needs of the future in business, Mr. Coolidge said: "We need further improvement in transportation facilities by development of inland waterways; we need railroad consolidations; we need further improvement of our railway terminals for more economical distribution of commodities in great congested centers; we need reorganization of government departments; we need still larger extension of electrification; in general, we need still further effort against all of the categories of waste."

But the idealistic conception of business was chiefly useful to Mr. Coolidge in his outline of America's foreign policy. "American business," the president declared, "is an integral part of this policy."

"Peace, we know," the president said, "rests to a great extent upon justice, but it is very difficult for the public mind to divorce justice from economic opportunity. The problem for which we have been attempting a solution is, in the first instance, to place the people of the earth back into avenues of profitable employment. It was necessary to restore hope, to renew courage. A great contribution to this end has been made with American money."

"The work is not all done yet. No doubt it will develop that this has not been accomplished without some mistakes, but the important fact remains that when the world needed to be revived, we did respond. As nations see their way to a safer economic existence, they will see their way to a more peaceful existence. Possessed of the means to meet personal and public obligations, people are reestablishing their self-respect. The financial strength of America has contributed to the spiritual restoration of the world. It has risen into the domain of true business."

PETRELS CLOSE PRACTICE TODAY FOR BEAR CLASH

Marist and Decatur Close Grid Season Today

U. S. B., Tech High, G. M. A. Meet Foes on Local Fields; Bean's Team Plays Griffin

With this week's round of play in the prep league comes the closing of the season for two Atlanta teams and both will play on foreign fields. Marist will attempt to close its season with a win over Griffin High school in Griffin, while Decatur High hopes to do the same with LaGrange High school in LaGrange. Boys' High will run into some of the stiffest opposition that it has had this season when it plays Columbus High in Columbus.

Here in Atlanta, U. S. B. will pass another G. I. A. A. milepost when it plays Newnan High. Tech High will tackle the strong Greenville (S. C.) team at Grady field, and G. M. A. will take on Madison High at G. M. A.

The Smithies have been hard at work all week pointing for this afternoon's game. Greenville has a strong team this year, having defeated Columbia High recently. Columbia was the team which Tech played last year for the southern prep championship and was beaten by the Bears. Boys' High lost to Columbia last year, and the defeat by Greenville was a big upset.

Smithies Showing Better. Heavy scrimmaging has been on the program this week. Coach Tolbert sending his charges against each other twice this week. The squad showed up better than it has in the past, and hopes are high in the Gold camp for a victory this afternoon.

George O'Beir, big tackle, who received a cut on his lip last week, that required several stitches, is expected to be in the line-up today. If he is not able to play his place will be filled by Red Carlton. Newt Heard, guard, who has been on the injured list, has about recovered and will see service today. Parshall, hard hitting fullback, will be encumbered somewhat by a stiff knee, but is expected to play.

Following is the probable line-up: Payne and Davis, ends; O'Beir and Heard, tackles; S. Payne and Marks, guards; Royston, center; Davidson, quarter; Cook and Waugh, halves; Parshall, full.

Marist's First Road Trip. Coach Bean has whipped his Marist squad into shape for its final game with Griffin, in Griffin. This will be the first road trip that the team has made, and the boys are anxious to win it and also close the season with a win. The Cadets have not lost

Hello, Alex, Meet the Third "Red" Barron

Photograph by J. T. Holloway, Staff Photographer.

You've heard the story of the Three Bears? Well, here are the three Barrons. Reading from left to right, David Irenus, Pat and Carter Barron. Pat, the youngest, is a sophomore at Monroe A. and M. and will in all probability make Tech as valuable an athlete as his two illustrious brothers.

BY JULIAN GRIFFIN.

Back in the fall of 1918, so the story goes, Tech High, the Tech freshmen and the Monroe Aggies were involved in a sort of triangular affair, spiced with intense rivalry. Tech High, it seems, annually trounced the Aggies, but the junior Yellow Jack, G. I. A. A. team, but has been beaten by one, and has been beaten by a team not in the league.

The following men will probably start today: Haman and Davenport, ends; Spear and Timmons, tackles; Speaks and Courney, guards; Murray, center; Butler, quarter; Martin and Carpenter, halves; Ferguson, fullback.

Winn Lost to Boys' High. Boys' High was recipient of another loss this week when it was announced that Breezy Winn, star fullback for the Purple team, had been ruled ineligible to make the trip to Columbus. Captain Jack McCleskey will be switched from end to full, and Frank Winn will fill in at end.

Last week Boys' High lost Pete Ford, who left school after having made a good showing throughout the season. Coach Doyle has been holding his men in check this week, after having worked them hard all season. Only one scrimmage has been held, and the rest of the time has been devoted to signal drill, running back punts, and perfecting plays, etc. Coach Doyle is holding his men back to keep them from going stale, and also to save them for the annual tilt with Duval High of Jacksonville. The game with Columbus is going to be about the hardest that the Hurricanes have had yet, but they are confident of holding the Blue Devils to a close score, if not defeating them.

Having been idle since last Armistice day the G. M. A. cadets are ready for the Madison game, and the men are in good shape. Coach Morrow has been working his men pretty hard, rounding them into shape for the game. Several scrimmages have been held and the Cadets have been holding their usual early morning signal drills, and the time in the afternoon being devoted to the regular program.

Darlington HI Closes SAT. Rome, Ga., November 19.—(Special.)—The Darlington eleven will play its last football game this season at Barron Park Saturday, at 2:30 o'clock, when it faces Asheville School for Boys. A record breaking crowd is expected to see the contest, which will be one of the best in Rome this season.

It was decided, since the Rome High and Darlington annual game had been discontinued, that Rome High will play a game this season and Darlington next. Rome High will meet Dayton, Tenn., in Rome Thanksgiving day.

Coach Charlie Scott, of Darlington, states that every player will be in excellent condition by Saturday, and though the Asheville eleven is heavy and experienced the game will be a spirited one.

A. L. Banister, director of athletics at the Asheville school, stated that they were anticipating greatly the trip to Georgia and expected a pleasant game.

GA. RATS OFF FOR BAINBRIDGE. Athens, Ga., November 19.—(Special.)—The Georgia freshmen left Athens Thursday for Bainbridge where they play the Florida freshmen Friday in their last game of the season.

Bainbridge was host to the two teams last year, when the locals were victorious, and the board of commerce of the city has offered a loving cup for the team winning two of three games.

The locals have played four games this year, losing their only game to Alabama. Wins were scored over Clemson and Auburn, and Mercer held the Bull Pups to a 0-0 tie game. Florida is undefeated this season and Friday's game is expected to be a hard fought affair.

GA. HARRIERS LEAVE FOR MEET. Athens, Ga., November 19.—(Special.)—Georgia's cross-country team left Athens Thursday afternoon for the southern conference cross-country meet to be held at Blacksburg, Va., Saturday. Six members of the team made the trip, and included Captain Fritz Orr, Tom Marks, Bill Tate, Y. E. Bergeron, Brannon and Brickton. Manager J. T. Griffin accompanied the runners.

The Georgia squad has been working hard in preparation for this meet and an unusually good team represents the Red and Black this season. Georgia's record this season is two victories, having met Clemson and Tech. A perfect score was made against Clemson, while the Jacket harriers were defeated, 25-30.

he was an all-southern football man and was once selected on the late Walter Camp's second all-American team. He was captain of the football team during his senior year, captain of the baseball team, a three-letter man (barely missing a basketball letter), president of the T club, president of the Y. M. C. A., president of the student council and a member of every honorary society on the campus, in addition to being active in religious affairs and president of the Agona Sunday school class.

To show something of his winning personality and the esteem in which he was held, when he played the 49th and last football game of his life—against Auburn in 1922—Captain John Shirey, of Auburn, presented him a silver service in behalf of the Auburn team, a tribute never surpassed in college athletic circles. Coach Mike Donahue, then of Auburn, wept on his shoulders.

That same night was also considered important in the life of this young sorrel top, for it was then that he became the husband of Miss Alice Evans House.

That year marked the passing of the first Barron from the Tech campus, but at the same time the Tech freshman team passed on another Barron to the varsity squad.

Carter Barron was held out of the varsity games during his sophomore year, in 1923, and just got into a few games last year. He was slower breaking into varsity circles than his brother, but this year holds a first varsity berth at halfback in an admirable manner.

He is also a letter man in basketball and, among other honors, he is president of the student council and vice president of the senior class.

But they all must pass on in a steady and endless stream. In one year from Thanksgiving Carter, also, will fade from the evanescent glory of the college gridiron.

He is not the last, however. Up at Monroe A. & M., where the first Barron is coaching, another Barron is budding. Pat is his good Irish name and, as a sophomore, he is displaying qualities that are destined to make him worthy of the name he is to bear in football circles.

We have seen him play once this year—his first year of football—and he certainly looks like a coming youngster to us. "Big Red" says he is the fastest of the three, but he must wiggle some swift cleats if he is to eclipse the speed of "Old Lightning," as they used to call the Tornado leader of yore.

He will play against Riverside Friday and has one more year of prep football before he is ready for college. We forgot to ask if he intends to enter Tech. But newspaper men are accredited with enough foolish questions as it is.

Alabama had its Sewells and Vandergraffs, the Day brothers made football history at Georgia and the Blake boys have been the toasts of Vanderbilt, but no family has made greater contributions to the athletic material of any college than the Barron family has, and is will-to-Tech.

Carroll Only Varsity Man Unable To Start Saturday; Team Runs Passing Plays

One more day of light work is all that stands between the Oglethorpe Petrels and their clash Saturday at Spiller's field with the Mercer Bears, greatest rivals of the boys who learn their football from Coach Harry Robertson.

The final practice, set for this afternoon on Hermance field, will see the Petrels in the lightest kind of a signal drill, a few lopes down the field under punts and a turn or two around the edge of the field to loosen muscles for the Saturday clash.

The team that Coach Robertson worked yesterday in his signal drill and the rest of Thursday's practice is probably the outfit that will start Saturday against the Bears. Only one varsity man is missing from the line-up. He is Carroll, end, who has an ankle that probably will keep him out of play Saturday.

The team that ran signals yesterday and which probably will be put on the field against the Mercer team is as follows:

The signal drill yesterday found the Petrels laying plenty of time on the aerial game. It indicated that Coach Robertson will expect a lot of yards by the forward passes in which he has been drilling his men.

After the signal drill yesterday, both line and backfield were sent to the tackling dummies.

Jacksonville, Fla., November 19.—(AP)—"Boots" Antley, of Columbus, Ga., will meet Eddie Speaks, of Louisville, Ky., in the ten-round final of the boxing card to be presented here next Tuesday night under the auspices of the Florida national guard. Last Tuesday Speaks uncorked a slashing offensive to battle Ben Ray, of Columbus, Ga., into submission in a fight featured by Ray's gameness.

Tech Varsity Gets Final Scrimmage of '25 Season

Although plenty of time is allotted between the Georgia and Auburn games, the Yellow Jackets are wasting none of it. Both the first and second Tech varsity teams donned helmets yesterday and scrimmaged against the scrub eleven.

After the first varsity squad had finished its quota of rough work, Wycoff and company retired to one end of the field to run signals while the sophomores opposed the scrubs.

Both offensive and defensive scrimmage was ordered, as it was the final scrimmage of the year. Wycoff, in the final scrimmage at Tech, got away for a couple of long runs around end.

George Sprick, who was injured a few days ago, will not be ready in time for the Auburn game. It was announced yesterday, which means that he is through until next year.

Don Miller also had his freshmen busy on the north field preparing for the game here with the Auburn rats Saturday.

The season over, Miller will leave Friday week to join his mates of the Four Horsemen. No definite announcement has been made regarding the arrangements of the famous quartet this winter, except that they are to participate in the all-star contest on New Year's day.

Squad for the Auburn game will be Miss Nell Brooks, of Savannah, and Miss Bessie White, of Atlanta.

GRANGE FLATLY DENIES HE HAS SIGNED PRO CONTRACT

"Tired of Constant Rumors," Asserts Flash of Gridiron; Will Be in Lineup Saturday

Champaign, Ill., November 19.—The latest denial of "Red" Grange to charges, insinuations and affidavits that he is tainted with professionalism came tonight after the famous red-head had tried to hide from reporters all day.

The tremendous interest throughout the country in what he will do to capitalize his reputation made out of the harassed Illinois football player a besieged man today.

After remaining in seclusion throughout the morning, Grange evaded reporters and hurried to the football field to practice for the first time in three days. There he was shown an affidavit attested by E. P. Albertson, of Kokomo, Ind., to the effect that he had seen Grange's signature to a contract with C. C. Pyle, Champaign theater manager, making Pyle Grange's agent.

Grange issued denial. Thereupon, Grange, in desperation, issued one more denial of professionalism as follows: "They have nothing on me. I have not received a penny. I have not signed a contract. If Pyle was asked the same question he would give the same answer. I am getting sick and tired of these constant rumors about my signing contracts to do this and the other."

George Huff, athletic director, and Coach Zuppke both said that they expect Grange to be in the lineup next Saturday against Ohio State, but Zuppke added that Grange's two days' absence from the practice field while he went to his home at Wheaton to confer with his father about his future, had upset some of the plans for Saturday.

While sports reporters were besieging Grange here, his brother newspaper men in Chicago were the victims of a hoax by some practical joker who called each paper in turn, representing himself as Mr. Pyle, and announced that he had just arrived here from Florida, was tired of all the rumors about him, and Grange and expected to see newspaper men at 2 o'clock at his hotel. He gave each one the name of a different hotel and reporters working in relays stormed one hotel after another for several hours after finding that Pyle is in Florida.

The Light of Grange.
Other Football Stars.
Stanton and Sports.

SEVERAL writers of football in the United States have come to the conclusion that Red Grange has been overdone, and if they are not right about it a lot of disgusted other persons in the country want to know why. So much drive has been written about the young man that people who run as they read have come to the conclusion that Grange is the world's champion at almost anything.

The truth, of course, is that Red Grange is a great football player and deserves an average amount of telling the world about it. But he is no greater than some other football players who have lived and passed out of the picture.

GRANGE has been stopped and well stopped on several occasions. That was because smart coaches built a defense which would halt the flyer. There have been football players who rarely were stopped, but writing persons would have you believe Grange to be better than any of them were.

Some of these writing persons saw Jim Thorpe in action, but most of them did not. Those who did should be ashamed of themselves, for there never was a football player like Jim Thorpe, and it is doubtful if there ever will be another.

WE SAW Jim Thorpe when he was a star at Carlisle, and he was a most amazing man. We saw him years later after he was an old man, as athletes go, but he still was a football player so good that other all-American stars playing with and against him didn't even look good.

Jim Thorpe was the greatest broken-field runner the football world ever saw and he was the hardest and surest tackler this observer ever laid eyes on. Red Grange is no better than Thorpe and it is extremely doubtful if he is as good.

MICHIGAN men will tell you they had a football player at their state university named Willie Heston, and they will argue with you over the prowess of Grange compared with him. There was Mahan, there was Bricky, Poe, Joe Guyon, Sam White, Walter Eckersall, and some others. There have been many football players who looked like the world's greatest when they played. But they were not press-agented to the extent of Red Grange's advertising.

If Jim Thorpe or Willie Heston had been advertised to the extent Red Grange is the limit would have been reached in personal admiration. They were truly great.

FRANK L. STANTON is the poet laureate of Georgia, but he browses around some times in queer places in the newspapers—that is, some folks would think them queer for a poet laureate. Personally we believe a poet laureate has as much right to browse as a poet who is not also a laureate.

Mr. Stanton, for instance, handed us a clipping from The Wichita (Kansas) Beacon, which selects the following all-American football team with the dry comment that Ellis Island should not be overlooked; Kutsch, of Iowa; Krueger, of Pennsylvania; Almquist, of Minnesota; Oberlander, of Dartmouth; Frickman, of Michigan; Oosterbaan, of Michigan; Karow, of Ohio; Borell, of Muhlenberg; Merkobrad, of Indiana; Makofski, of Union; McCarty, of Chicago.

TIDE TAUGHT TO RUSH BACKS

BY BOB MATHERNE.

Tusculoosa, Ala., November 19.—(Special.)—While experts here and there are predicting their predictions on the Alabama-Georgia game, and arguing who's who concerning this mythical all-southern team, the big Crimson team of Alabama is preparing for Georgia.

"You can say that we are going to see our linesmen charge on the offense or out they will come," was Coach Wallace Wade's sole statement here Wednesday morning.

Has Alabama's line charged on offense this year? Now that you think about it, it has not put forth all the power that one could expect. It certainly did not make any huge openings many times Saturday against Florida and it certainly did not cause many long gains to be made against Georgia Tech several weeks ago. But you can look for the regulars to do so against Georgia—or out of the game they will come.

Graduates in Line.
Looking at it this way, you can hardly expect that Buckler, Hudson, Camp—if he plays—and Captain Jones will be guilty of anything which might force the Capstone mentor to take them out of the final game of their grid career. As for Holmes, Perry, Winstett and Tolbert Brown—others who will probably start the game—they will be expected to rip the Georgia line to shreds when called upon or some ambitious reserve is apt to trot forward to his position.

Reviewing past games, it is easily remembered that Hubert Barnes and Caldwell, three great line smashers, have not terrified any lines this season. Many times have they been repulsed in their plunges, and Alabama has been stopped quite a few times within ten yards from the opponent's goal. Penalties abated this in some instances, but enough is remembered to feel that they will do some murderous charging on Turkey Day.

Must Stop Bulldog Passes.

Georgia has a great passing attack. It has been noted in play-by-play summaries of Georgia games that the Bulldogs pass from any angle and on all parts of the field. It also has about twice as many backs who can run around the flanks like lightning. Everyone expects Alabama to shoot passes back at them, but don't look for anything until you see it; what Alabama is going to use against Georgia will not be known except by the players and the coaches until it is done at Rickwood field.

Georgia possesses ample fleet, light backs who are proficient in the many arts of a great back. Look over this list: Hatcher, Estes, Cain, Moore, Kilpatrick, Morton, and about ten others the writer can't think of just now. They are not weak in the back-field. As to their line, the starting seven will include Luckie, Rogers, Captain Thompson, Forbes, and a number of other veterans. Their reserve strength is said to be weak, but Alabama has not any great number of reserve linesmen.

Camp May Not Play.

Alabama's one big worry at present is whether "Pete" Camp, one of the largest and fastest tackles in Dixie, will be able to play against Georgia. Camp was injured in the Florida game and has been badly able to meander around the campus this week. His hurt is seriously worrying the Crimson as the loss of this three-year tackle will be hard to bear. Freddie Pickard, a big 200-pounder who has played in several games this year, and Leslie Payne, another stalwart youngster of the year, are being groomed for his place if the giant Manchester lad fails to come round in splendid shape for the game.

HADDOCK, HEATH GOLF WINNERS

Pinehurst, N. C., November 19.—(P)—Fau. F. Haddock and Jack Heath, Charlotte, N. C., won the all-mature event in the annual mid-south amateur golf tournament matches here today when they turned in a card of 69-74-143, to lead the field by two strokes for 36 holes.

C. J. Murphy, Charles River club, Boston, and R. E. Rolfe, Chicago, were runners-up with 74-71-145. A stroke behind them came Joseph H. Hetchkins, New Haven, prominent senior golfer, and Francis T. Keating, Braeburn, with 74-72-146.

Other good scores follow: Maurice Risley, Atlantic City, and John Foraman, Wingedfoot (Mamaroneck), with 73-78-151. James A. Stillman, National Links (Long Island), and Donald Parson, Youngstown, 74-79-153.

T. R. Brem and F. R. Laxton, Charlotte, 74-79-153. Robert E. Harlowe, Pasadena, Fla., and Wilfred Outmet, Boston 77-76-153.

W. A. Rupp, Buffalo, and W. D. Porter, Castine, Maine, 79-77-156. Jack Davison, Shawnee, Pa., and Joe Bydolek, Buffalo, the favorite, picked up this afternoon.

NEALE SIGNS NEW CONTRACT

University, Va., November 19.—(AP)—Services of Earl Neale, head coach of football and baseball, are assured the University of Virginia for at least two more seasons. Athletic authorities of the university announced today that Neale had signed his name to a contract for the 1926-27 and 1927-28 seasons.

Coach Neale came to Virginia three years ago from Washington, Pa., where he coached the Washington and Jefferson eleven. His team this year has suffered only one defeat in eight games, losing 12 to 0, to Washington and Lee in a struggle on a muddy field for the state championship.

Flournoy, of Tulane, Ranks With South's Best Kickers

New Orleans, November 19.—(AP)—Flournoy of Tulane, who has kicked his way to glory everlastingly in southern football this season, seems to have won the right to quite properly "ask" two other great southern football players to move over and make room for him in the south's hall of fame for punters. Records indicate that every decade a sensational kicker comes out of the south. In 1905 Scarborough of Sewanee showed the way. In 1915 Thurman of Virginia had no equal and in 1925 Flournoy can swap kicks with any in the business. Punters on a football field seem longer when estimated with the naked eye than when the relentless tape is applied. And dusting off records in the dim football past may fail to discount the enthusiasm of exciting moments, but there seems to be little to choose between the performances of these three heroes of the strong foot. Certain it is that each of the trio many times sent the ball 60 and even 70 yards on its way with an occasional reference to 76-yard successes when a friendly wind or hard field was present to lend a hand.

The three aces were as unlike as three players are likely to be picked from different decades and vastly different schools of football. Scarborough was a quarterback and far from a giant in stature, carrying much of his weight in his feet. Thurman was big all over and played guard. Flournoy is tall and rangy and plays halfback.

Flournoy's average this year, unofficial and certainly not guaranteed to the foot nor inch, has been placed at 48 yards. He had a kick of 76 yards against Louisiana Poly and in the Northwestern game in Chicago he kicked eight times for an average of 54 yards. Against "Ole Miss" he averaged 60 yards and in the Sewanee game kicked nine times for a 45-yard average. His average against Missouri was 42 yards. Flournoy boasting a fine pair of legs and a foot big enough to use the power of his legs, gets his punts off fast and has not had a kick blocked in two years. Thurman was credited with a 50-yard average in 1915 and only slightly less the following year when his field goal from the 42-yard line assisted Virginia in winning from Yale. In 1917 Thurman played on the Camp Jackson team, Columbia, S. C., where his kicking was even more impressive than it had been in college. He had a clever side step that protected him in kicking and seldom was his kick blocked. Although clever at kicking out of bounds, the outstanding feature was a powerful leg driving a big foot into the ball which traveled far and high. His ends had lots of time to get down and opponents were forced to handle many kicks around their goal line with two ends on them.

JOANNA

BY H. L. GATES

INSTALLMENT XXXII.

Always, of course, there were cards from courtiers, from jewelers, milliners and florists. To be a purveyor to the needs of the Mademoiselle Joanna was, along the Riviera, something like a patent from royalty. It was Marie's duty to put all bills in a bunch, when her mistress had glanced at them, and send them to the bank in New York.

Celeste watched over the engagements her mistress made, and was in a hopeless mess over them. Once, when she was in such dismay that she pleaded with her mistress for help, Joanna told her: "You must learn, Celeste, that I am not to be asked to do anything I say I'll do. It would be thoroughly impossible."

So, while Lord Dorminster waited some place on the spacious ground of Villa Amette, Celeste and Marie prepared her for her riding togs and Joanna ran her morning's post through her fingers. Only one letter interested her. When she came to this one she dropped the others into a tray held by Marie, and put the one onto her dressing table. Then, Celeste having finished with her eyelashes, she closed her eyes.

Through all that lapsed year Joanna watched, each morning, for the envelope that bore the familiar legend of the bank, in New York. It came to her regularly, before she left New York with Yvonne, for London; during the long months in England, where Teddy Dorminster had piloted her with Yvonne remaining in London, to the country homes of many of his distinguished relatives; and through her wild revels in Paris. Each time she recognized it among her letters she carefully went through a ritual.

She would put it aside until her maids were finished with her, or until she could dismiss whoever was near at the moment. Then she would close her eyes and sit very still. Her mind would leap backward and out of her memories summon a procession of things that had happened. She was very careful in her marshalling of this parade. She omitted nothing. In every letter she received that mark of the bank on the outside she feared there might be the wiping away of all the mystery of her money, or, perhaps, its explanation. She knew, although Eggleston had not encouraged her in this belief, that the explanation would come, some day. And, always, she wanted to be prepared for it.

Brandon, still a sinister shadow who had ever been in the background; had toyed with her in New York, had smiled ironically whenever she repulsed him, and gradually, had wrapped some sort of a net about her which almost strangled her. Kenilworth had been devoted to her, sentimental, brooding, sometimes earnest and sometimes passionately bitter, but Brandon had never lost his head. Kenilworth had said, that first night in New York, that he was going to "play for her." She had accepted the challenge. He had ceased playing through her battles.

But Brandon controlled her. This she must always admit, in the end. Once or twice, she would remember, they had had a conflict. She had drawn upon every item in her store of artifice and had gambled her lure against his mastery, and, each time, she had almost been the victor. Both times she had brought things into his eyes that were revealing, and too dangerous for her to fight against. His obscure, but seemingly malicious power dominated her again, because she would not risk tempting him.

When she had measured herself through the passing of the year, and weighed the meaning of each step and its influence upon her, she would open her letter and read it.

As usual, what she feared was not in the one that Marie had handed her while Teddy Dorminster waited some place out on the grounds. It included, however, a paragraph which she read over and over again.

All these letters from the bank were dictated by Eggleston himself. He was always the same, cold, precise, formal. Invariably he began Dear Miss Manners." She read:

"I inclose herewith a statement of your account as to this date, separated, according to your instructions, into two divisions. Perhaps you will check the longer one, which includes items paid by your order. I have carefully checked the expenditures listed on the second statement and find them correct."

"You will notice that with these statements your account would be seriously depleted, but I am to inform you that your benefactor has notified me that a substantial further deposit will be made to your credit. You may assume, therefore, that any requirements you may have will be met promptly. I remain,

"Very truly yours,
"ANDREW EGGLESTON."

When she understood the meaning of that last paragraph, that she needed more money and it was being given her by the same unknown, and in the same unexplained way, Joanna hastily glanced at the shorter of the two statements. She did not examine the listed items, but only the total. Then she crumpled this portion of her accounting into a wad and called Marie, "Bring me a candle, lighted, please," she commanded.

While Marie held the tiny flame before her Joanna held the crumpled wad of paper over it until her fingers were scorched, then dropped it into the candlestick. Some watched until the paper ball had burned. Before she would let Marie take the ashes away she stirred them into powder with her finger, as if she would run no risk of prying eyes seeking out a secret from the cindered paper.

The other accounting sheet, which bore a long list of bills paid for her by the bank, she tossed into a drawer. Then, with her riding crop slapping smartly along her leg, she went out. Villa Amette had long been one of the show places of the Riviera, one of those splendid miniature palaces which nestle in the semi-tropical foliage of the base of Cap Martin, a low, rambling house of balconies, trellised windows and wide, stately verandas. Its broad acres stretched back onto the slopes of the hill in series of terraces that lost themselves in groves of olive, orange and mimosa. Below was the dense blue Mediterranean. Gardens of pink blossoms and squares of red and white roses overhung the sea and bordered the paths that wound through pergolas heavy with fragrant clematis. Only the very rich, and of these only those whose whims were for splendor, ever had braved the cost of a season's rent for the Villa Amette.

Yvonne once before had tenanted this palatial estate. Now she shared it, at her suggestion, with Joanna. Yvonne and Joanna were inseparable and yet there had been few confidences between them. People had learned that to approach the Golden Girl they first must win the favor of Yvonne Coutant. And they wondered a great deal, because of this circumstance.

With a groom holding the bridles of the two horses, Dorminster awaited Joanna at the steps of a great door that opened onto the driveway. By the time she came out to him he was sullen. Joanna's eyes danced when she saw his mood. He helped her mount, tossing her to her saddle as easily as if she were a feather and they turned their horses into the road that either crossed the frontier and went on to San Remo along the sea, or led back to Mentone and Monaco.

"Are you going to remind me again of such foolish things as I may have said to you last night? If so I shall go straightaway back. Roddy will be around some place by now, wanting his tennis."

She made no effort to turn, however, and they rode for a while, horse to horse, silently. Joanna, buoyant with her youth, took long breaths of the scented, lazy breeze that stole up from the sea. But when Dorminster spoke at last she swept him with a quick glance.

"The thought of last night that bothers me is not so much your forgetfulness as the memory of others. That's what I want to talk about."

She didn't reply, nor did he continue. They rode in silence again, until they turned into a bridge path that went in among the trees in the Condamine, a path that once had guided the Romans under Caesar to the hiding place of the Christian slave who has since become St. Devote, the patron saint of a sanctuary erected over the spot where she was captured and killed. It is a narrow path. The horses brushed each other as they threaded it. Suddenly Joanna said, softly:

"You love me very much, don't you, Teddy?"

And he answered, again shortly, "Yes."

"It's true, almost, isn't it," she asked, still softly, "that you have stopped loving other women and being loved by them because of me?"

He glanced at her, to see if she were tricked him. He decided she wasn't. "I used to think," he said, "that my mission in life was to love women, but I was mistaken. I've learned that it is better to love one woman, and put whatever qualities I have in her trust. So far I have considered women my duty. I've wanted you to be my refuge. But I've said all that before, haven't I?"

"The obvious answer is, because I am actually serious. So much so, that I don't like what they are talking about today from one end of the Riviera to the other—your escapade last night with Prince Michael, Kenilworth's fascination for you, and the affairs of Yvonne. It's getting nasty. I'd like to get you out of it."

Joanna's eyes surveyed the countryside, slowly, deliberately. The sparkle went out of her face, but there was no other sign that she was perturbed. When she was satisfied with her examination of the landscape, she turned again to the man who rode beside her.

INSTALLMENT XXXII.

Always, of course, there were cards from courtiers, from jewelers, milliners and florists. To be a purveyor to the needs of the Mademoiselle Joanna was, along the Riviera, something like a pet to royalty. It was Marie's duty to put all bills in a bunch, when her mistress had glanced at them, and send them to the bank, in New York.

Celeste watched over the engagements her mistress made, and was in a hopeless mess over them. Once, when she was in such dismay that she pleaded with her mistress for help, Joanna told her: "You must learn, Celeste, that I am not to be asked to do anything I say I'll do. It would be thoroughly impossible."

So, while Lord Dorminster waited some place on the spacious ground of Villa Amette, Celeste and Marie prepared her for her riding togs and Joanna ran her morning's post through her fingers. Only one letter interested her. When she came to this one she dropped the others into a tray held by Marie, and put the one onto her dressing table. Then, Celeste having finished with her eyelashes, she closed her eyes.

Through all that lapsed year Joanna watched, each morning, for the envelope that bore the familiar legend of the bank, in New York. It came to her regularly, before she left New York with Yvonne, for London; during the long months in England, where Teddy Dorminster had piloted her with Yvonne remaining in London, to the country homes of many of his distinguished relatives; and through her wild revels in Paris. Each time she recognized it among her letters she carefully went through a ritual.

She would put it aside until her maids were finished with her, or until she could dismiss whoever was near at the moment. Then she would close her eyes and sit, very still. Her mind would leap backward and out of her memories summon a procession of things that had happened. She was very careful in her marshalling of this parade. She omitted nothing. In every letter she received with that mark of the bank on the outside she feared there might be the wiping away of all the mystery of her money, or, perhaps, its explanation. She knew, although Eggleston had not encouraged her in this belief, that the explanation would come, some day. And, always, she wanted to be prepared for it.

Brandon, still a sinister shadow who had ever been in the background, had toiled with her in New York, had smiled ironically whenever she repulsed him, and gradually, had wrapped some sort of a net about her which almost strangled her. Kenilworth had been devoted to her, sentimental, brooding, sometimes earnest and sometimes passionately bitter, but Brandon had never lost his head. Kenilworth had said, that first night in New York, that he was going to "play for her." She had accepted the challenge. He had ceased playing and was frankly struggling to break through her battlements.

But Brandon controlled her. This she must always admit, in the end. Once or twice, she would remember, they had had a conflict. She had drawn upon every item in her store of artifice and had gambled her lure against his mastery, and, each time, she had almost been the victor. Both times she had brought things into his eyes that were revealing, and too dangerous for her to fight against.

His obscure, but seemingly malicious power dominated her again, because she would not risk tempting him. When she had measured herself through the passing of the year, and weighed the meaning of each step and its influence upon her, she would open her letter and read it.

As usual, what she feared was not in the one that Marie had handed her while Teddy Dorminster waited some place out on the grounds. It included, however, a paragraph which she read over and over again.

All these letters from the bank were dictated by Eggleston himself. He was always the same, cold, precise, formal. Invariably he began Dear Miss Manners." She read:

"I inclose herewith a statement of your account as to this date, separated, according to your instructions, into two divisions. Perhaps you will check the longer one, which includes items paid by your order. I have carefully checked the expenditures listed on the second statement and find them correct."

"You will notice that with these statements your account would be seriously depleted, but I am to inform you that your benefactor has notified me that a substantial further deposit will be made to your credit. You may assume, therefore, that any requirements you may have will be met promptly. I remain,

"Very truly yours,

"ANDREW EGGLESTON."

When she understood the meaning of that last paragraph, that she needed more money and it was being given her by the same unknown, and in the same unexplained way, Joanna hastily glanced at the shorter of the two statements. She did not examine the listed items, but only the total. Then she crumpled this portion of her accounting into a wad and called Marie, "Bring me a candle, lighted, please," she commanded.

While Marie held the tiny flame before her Joanna held the crumpled wad of paper over it until her fingers were scorched, then dropped it into the candlestick. Some watched until the paper ball had burned. Before she would let Marie take the ashes away she stirred them into powder with her finger, as if she would run no risk of prying eyes seeking out a secret from the cindered paper.

The other accounting sheet, which bore a long list of bills paid for her by the bank, she tossed into a drawer. Then, with her riding crop slapping smartly along her leg, she went out. "Villa Amette had long been one of the show places of the Riviera, one of those splendid miniature palaces which nestle in the semi-tropical foliage of the base of Cap Martin, a low, rambling house of balconies, trellised windows and wide, stately verandas. Its broad acres stretched back onto the slopes of the hill in series of terraces that lost themselves in groves of olive, orange and mimosa. Below was the dense blue Mediterranean. Gardens of pink blossoms and squares of red and white roses overhung the sea and bordered the paths that wound through pergolas heavy with fragrant clematis. Members of the Junior chorus will meet promptly at 1:45 o'clock preceding regular program, which begins at 2:30 o'clock. All meetings are held at Edico hall.

A box of Cigars

Smokers will appreciate this—

YOU know what a box of 25 good cigars costs—well, here's a new way to save the price of those cigars.

Most of the popular tooth pastes sell for 50 cents. Probably you are now using one of these brands.

Listerine Tooth Paste—as good a dentifrice as modern science knows how to produce—sells at 25 cents for the large tube.

Like most people, you probably use, say, a tube a month.

By using Listerine Tooth Paste, therefore, you save in the course of one year what corresponds to the price of that box of good cigars.

Think this over. Try Listerine Tooth Paste and we are sure you will thank us for this suggestion.

SWATS SWATS

ALL men have their luncheon clubs. Women have theirs, too. The men congregate in large parties and make speeches and try to forget the responsibilities and cares of the world. The women do it differently. Every woman nowadays is half a luncheon club. The other half is the "other woman," who invites her or is invited by her, to form a quorum. The men resent the term luncheon club. Theirs are Civic Clubs with capital letters. They don't just meet to eat. They merely eat to meet. And initiate or pep up things that will make the world a better place to live in.

The women—well, maybe the cook didn't come. But—"My dear, I just have to get with you occasionally, just as you. You're so restful—or so stimulating," as the case may be.

There was one of our butterfly friends we found ourselves facing at luncheon once upon a time at a country club. We had discussed the people at neighboring tables, and what we thought of the way the women dress at country clubs, and "who was that Mrs. Percival Woodgrass before she married?" and "which of the Mrs. Longstrengs is it whose husband has just made that killing in Florida?"

SHOULD WOMEN THINK?
"I don't know what led me to it; maybe nothing did; but really, our pretty vice-vi, remarked—
"You know, a lot of people wouldn't believe it, but I love to use my mind."

She must have seen us smile, for—
"I know what you're thinking. You're saying to yourself—'Why doesn't she?'"
"And that's a reasonable wonder. You know what is the only cause I have, that the people I run with don't use theirs."

"I love serious reading. I adore a real conversation, or just a listening in on people who talk about things and thoughts, instead of themselves."

and their golf scores and their boot-leggers and the make of their cars. "But the hardest mental exertion I get is putting down my real urge and being instead just as empty-headed as the people I go with expect and want me to be."
"If at a dinner party I try to set an intellectual ball a-rolling, the people I know best look at me in amusement and then leer good humoredly at me—'Bully, be yourself.'"

"Or there is that type of men who crawl into their shells. You see it back of their eyes—the thought, 'O Jupiter, I've got to live up to a high-brow all through this dinner.'"

"And it's funny, but the very women who are married to such men are afraid of them if I uncover my mind a bit. They're afraid I'm smarter than they are, and that the men folks will fall for it."

WHEN IN DOUBT BE OBVIOUS.
"Why," we murmured pacifically after a while, "why don't you take up, or take up with, a different way?"

"Because the only really cultured society in my town is a society of frumps. And I love crystal chandeliers and costly clothes—on the people around me as well as myself. A setting of material luxury is not incompatible with a society of real brilliance. On the contrary, they belong to each other."

"At dinner I want to sit next to well-dressed people, but people who sparkle, instead of people who are satisfied with mere banter."

"I'm tired of mediocrity, and I'm sinking into it; but what can I do?"
"It was not just a rhetorical question. It called for an answer. We thought a minute."

"Keep your eyes on the crystal ball," we told her. And then we prophesied: "Three courses are open to you: the first—find some other town to live in where you can get what you want; the second—make up your mind to be satisfied with

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY Maine and New Hampshire

by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

THE COLONIZATION OF MAINE AND NEW HAMPSHIRE BEGAN WITH THE APPEARANCE OF TINY FISHING VILLAGES ALONG THE COAST—THESE WERE CONTROLLED BY EITHER FERDINANDO GORGES OR JOHN MASON WHO HELD MOST OF THIS REGION AS A GRANT.

THE BOUNDARIES OF THESE GRANTS WERE ANNOYING TO MASSACHUSETTS, BECAUSE THE PURITANS IN THEIR CHARTER HAD BEEN GIVEN ALL THE LAND TO A LINE THREE MILES NORTH OF THE SOURCE OF THE MERRIMACK RIVER. WHEN THE GRANT WAS MADE THE RIVER HAD NOT BEEN EXPLORED AND WAS THOUGHT TO RUN DUE WEST INSTEAD OF CURVING SHARPLY TO THE NORTH.

IN SPITE OF THIS DISAGREEMENT OVER THE BOUNDARY LINE THERE WAS NO SERIOUS TROUBLE, AND PURITANS CAME FREELY FROM MASSACHUSETTS TO SETTLE IN MAINE AND NEW HAMPSHIRE. THESE PURITAN SETTLERS WERE NOT FISHERMEN, BUT FARMERS AND THEY SOON DEVELOPED AGRICULTURAL COMMUNITIES.

HOWEVER, AT THE DEATH OF GORGES AND MASON, THE PURITANS SPEEDILY OBTAINED CONTROL OF THE MAINE AND NEW HAMPSHIRE SETTLEMENTS BY OFFERING PROTECTION IN RETURN FOR THEIR ALLEGIANCE TO MASSACHUSETTS.

Football in Olden Times.
FOOTBALL IN OLDEN TIMES. Quite a number of important football games will be played tomorrow, and the results will make some people glad, others sad. To see a good game, however, is fun—no matter who wins. For my part, I enjoy playing baseball or tennis more than football, but I'd rather watch a game of football than any other contest.

Did you ever wonder when the game of football was first played? It was a good long time ago—the Greeks played a type of football more than 2,000 years since! The game is a favorite sport in many countries. There was no regular number of players, but the men were divided into two equal groups. The ball was tossed up at midfield, and then there was a wild rush to kick it, knock it, or carry it to the opposite goal.

After the Romans conquered Greece, they learned about this Greek game. In Rome at the time a somewhat similar game was played, and there was much dispute as to which kind of "football" was better. The emperor Augustus ordered a set of rules to be made for the game. A piece of writing which has come down to us from ancient Rome describes the game and shows that it was played very much after the Greek fashion.

The Roman soldiers who conquered Britain seem to have taught the game to the native Celts. At any rate, it was known in a form among the Celts.

In the year 1775, and Englishman wrote down this note: "After dinner, all the youth of the city go into the fields and play the famous game of football. The elders of the city, the fathers of the players, the rich and wealthy, come to the fields on horseback to watch."

Football playing annoyed several English kings. Edward the Second caused this law to be made: "Since there is great noise in the city, caused by hustling over large footballs, we forbid such game to be played in the future on pain of prison."

That law was not well obeyed. Boys and young men even dared to play in the streets. Later kings gave the same kind of orders, but still the game was kept alive.

Tomorrow I shall tell you about the beginning of the modern "rugby" football.

MAIER AND PATTISON GIVE RECITAL TONIGHT

Advance sale of tickets indicated a large attendance at the concert at the auditorium tonight by Gay Maier and Lee Pattison, heralded as the "pianistic twins," and declared to have been the originators of the "two-piano" concert, according to members of the Atlanta Music club, sponsors of the entertainment.

Many colleges having music departments in and near Atlanta have issued invitations urging the "pianistic twins" to appear at their institutions during their stay here. The program is said to have plenty of variety ranging from grand opera to the latest popular songs.

Dr. James Cooper Emphasizes Need of Birth Control

One of the most instructive talks on the subject of birth control and retail salesmanship ever delivered in Atlanta was given Thursday night before the Atlanta Retail Merchants association by Dr. James Cooper, nationally known retail merchandising expert, of the National Cash Register company.

The meeting was the final general membership session of the association for 1935 and approximately 200 members were present. Dinner was served in the main dining room at the Chamber of Commerce building and an orchestra played during the meal.

Mr. Cooper, general chairman of the Community Chest campaign now in progress, said that the needs of the campaign. He said that while every one of the retail merchants who are members of the association has a part to play in the campaign, the organization of the chest nevertheless presents a task which requires the support of the retail merchants.

Mr. Cooper said the increase in the number of children born in the United States is astounding. He said that in the families of the intelligent, or biologically fit, the birth rate is approximately 2.7 or less than three children a family, while in the families of the biologically unfit the rate is three times as large per family.

William Sherman, veteran of the world war, who came to Atlanta several days ago as a patient at the U. S. Veterans' hospital on Peachtree road, committed suicide at the hospital Wednesday by drinking poison.

News of the suicide became known Thursday. No report had been made to county authorities because of its occurrence on United States government property.

His health and worry over having to separate from his family are believed to have prompted the act. His home is at Tennessee.

According to physicians at the hospital, Sherman arrived from his cot and went to a hallway, where he found a bottle of poison being used by an attendant as a disinfectant. He drained the bottle, swallowing such a great quantity that although every antacid was administered promptly, he died.

Sherman had been employed in the Tennessee postoffice, but recently suffered a breakdown in health. He went to Florida for a brief stay and then was persuaded by his wife to enter the hospital for treatment.
